The following message from Glenn Tilton, UAL's Chairman, President and CEO, was distributed to employees on August 27, 2010.

Dear fellow employee,

Today our company took an important step forward toward the completion of our proposed merger with Continental Airlines. The Antitrust Division of the United States Department of Justice (DOJ) has completed their review and determined that they have no objections to our merger.

As part of the review, United and Continental have agreed to the transfer of slots and related assets to Southwest, including 18 pairs of takeoff and landing slots at Newark. As you know, we vigorously compete with Southwest throughout our network. Since the slot pair transfer is expected to have minimal impact on our combined route network, we are not changing the previously announced synergy estimates.

We now progress to our next critical step: United and Continental have their respective shareholder votes to approve the merger scheduled for September 17.

We have delivered against our goals of improved and consistent performance. Year to date, United continues to lead our network peers in on-time performance and we are well positioned to close the merger with Continental, known for its customer service, and create the world's leading airline.

This is certainly good news for our stockholders and our customers, and for our employees – as the combined company provides the opportunity to create a truly world-class company able to provide stability and career advancement for our people.

Let's maintain the great progress and performance improvements that underpin today's -- and our future -- success.
